ERECT GARAGE Salts Textile Company Gets Permission to Erect Frame Buildings in Fire Limits

Upon the recommendation of the Paving Commission the Council voted last night to pay Toole & Sunderlin $1,864.40 for the completion of a sewer m Morehouse street.

The Council also voted to give the Saits Textile Co. permission to build two more frame buildings within the fire limits. One is to be a storage building about 70 feet long and 22 feet wide, and the other to be about 15 feet by 15 feet. Property owners within 200 feet waived all objections.

Thomas Morrissey was given permission to build a fireproof garage in Elm street. The building was under construction three months before the Alermen passed the special ordinance regulating the erection of garages, at its last meting. But the builders had failed to apply for a permit and the owner was obliged to get the sanction of the committee.

CIPPOLA'S DRUG LICENSE IS SUSPENDED

At the meeting of the Connecticut Board of Pharmacy Commissioners, held in this city last Friday, the drug license of Dr. C. P. Cippola of this city was suspended. The commission will inquire further into the case before deciding whether the license will be revoked or returned to the doctor, who conducts two drug stores, one at Pembroke and Cedar streets, and one at Commercial and Main streets.

The new State pharmacy law gives the Pharmacy Commissioners power to revoke the license of any druggist who violates the excise laws of the State. The law was directed at druggists who have made a business of selling liquor East Bridgeport store, failed to get a liquor license from the County Commissioners and he had a number of sale which the County Commissioners said would require a license. Cippola said that he had an internal revenue license and that was enough. He was prosecuted and fined in the City court and after taking an appeal to the Su-perior court was fined there.

TURNS A DUEL INTO A FARCE.

Used by a Weak or a Timid Opponent It Renders His Adversary Practically Helpless-A Case of Two Playing at the Same Game.

A long and interesting chapter might be written on the humors of duels which never came off or which in some way fell short of deserving the name. A case which occurred a few years ago in Paris, the particular home and harvest field of the habitual duelist, merits mention.

A peaceable looking gentleman was walking down one of the boulevards with a lady on his arm when out of a cafe sprang a man, who dealt him a violent kick. The victim turned, only the matter at the meeting to be held to meet the borrified apologies of the aggressor, who begged to assure him that it was wholly a mistake in identity. Instead of insisting upon an exchange of cards and the other customary forms, the kicked man answered, with much warmth, but admirable self control: "I cannot, sir, accept your expression of regret as sufficient. Your action may bave been a mistake, as you say, but acquaintances of mine may have witnessed it and will go away and spread the news that I have submitted to an insult without avenging it. I must therefore and instantly slap your face with equal publicity." The other most becomingly assented.

> ended with entire satisfaction on both Weak or timid fencers are sometimes taught by their masters to keep a more skillful antagonist busy by fixing the sword in one position, aimed straight at his sword hand, and then not moving except to retreat when pressed too hard. It is highly distressing to an accomplished swordsman to have to face a learner so instructed, for it means a great outlay of energy and the first sufferer administering a ringing blow on his ear, and the affair

wind to little purpose. Comte de Dion once thus chased a retreating adversary across plowed fields for a mile and a half and finalby the glass. Cippola, who opened his ly under the wheel of a cab for the Main street store as a branch of his poor satisfaction of civing him a slight prod in the back. Dr. Clemenceau in his famous duel with M. Deschanel, Italian cordials and tonics exposed for after a swift and wearisome pursuit. halted, shouldered his rapier like a walking stick and strolled back to his original place, throwing the contemptuous remark over his shoulder, "And now, monsieur, I will await you here." Catulle Mendes had a similar run after Lugne Poe through the forest of St. Germain, which he ended by flinging his own sword into the bushes, with the angry exclamation. "I am willing to die from exhaustion by the readside, if need be, but not from running after a poltroon."

A yet funnier incident was that which occurred in Toulouse, where a lawyer of some note named Cazeneuve was called out by a landed proprietor whom he had offended by a speech in court. He repaired at once to a fencing master, as he knew nothing whatever about handling a sword. This teacher gave him the usual advice about keeping his adversary at arm's length with the poised and immovable rapier, but strongly enjoined him not to retreat. It so happened that the landed proprietor, being equally ignorant, applied to the same master for instruction. The master, who was somewhat of a wag, gave him the lawyer's lesson in duplicate. When the two men met and their seconds had duly placed them a long and tedious stillness ensued. For more than five minutes each foeman stood with his sword arm extended at full length, waiting for the other to advance. Then the seconds intervened, claiming that both had proved themselves men of honor and courage and that nothing further was necessary but to shake hands and be recon-

And this recalls the occasion when Lieutenant Randolph Ridgely of our army while in the Mexican war was sought by two young officers who had quarreled and each of whom wished the lieutenant for his second. It was finally arranged that he should act as second for both. On the field, where the adversaries were armed with shotguns, Ridgely measured off a line of ten paces and placed them respectively at its two termini, cocked his own revolver and announced that he woulde give all the orders himself and in his own way and that he would shoot down whichever of his principals disobeyed him in the slightest particular. Then came the orders, very deliberately uttered: "Present arms!" "Carry arms!" "Shoulder arms!" "Take aim!" They took careful aim and waited almost breathlessly for some minutes for the command to fire. It never came. Instead came the orders: "Present arms!" "Carry arms!" "Shoulder arms!" "Right about face!"

"Front!" "Forward march!" They recognized his commands as given in deadly earnest and knew that it would be instautly fatal to rebel. He kept them marching till they reached his tent. There he halted them and bade them stand at parade rest till they had listened to a lecture on the folly of dueling which fairly made their ears ring. But he seasoned his dose of rebuke with a few words of praise for the soldierly mettle they had shown in facing each other's gun without flinching, and the two men became fast friends from that hour .- New York Post.
